

david breuer-weil project 3

david breuer-weil project 3

Project 3 is the third in a series of ground-breaking exhibitions of monumental paintings by Breuer-Weil that have established him as one of the most significant painters to have emerged in this generation. The paintings and drawings that make up this ongoing series are characterised by the endlessly fertile imagination with which the artist explores some of the most compelling contemporary issues whilst addressing timeless subjects. Project 1 took place at the Roundhouse in 2001 and Project 2 at the Bargehouse, Oxo Tower Wharf in 2003. Project 3 was executed between 2003 and 2007 and is being exhibited for the first time in a disused art deco building in Mercer Street in the heart of Covent Garden under the auspices of the Ben Uri Gallery, the London Jewish Museum of Art.

“a colossal talent . . . It is difficult to think of any series of contemporary British paintings more ambitious in form and content than Breuer-Weil’s Project”, John Russell Taylor, The Times

The London Jewish Museum of Art
A Museum for Everyone. Bridging Communities through Art.

£25.00